MIDWEEK EXTRA OF STAR SUPPLEMENTS WAR NEWS

Pictures Given of Most Important Persons and Incidents in Great European Conflict.

Washingtonians can supplement their newspaper information about the progress of the war tonight with actual pictures of the most important persons and incidents in the great conflict, for the Midweek War Extra of The Star is out.

So popular has this pictorial magazine become in the capital, and so well aware of this fact have the newsboys and the newsdealers become that there was early demand today at The Star for large quantities of these illustrated reviews, printed by the new retrograde process.

Vivid Pictures of Battle Front.

This week's number is a particularly interesting collection of vivid pictures of actual battle-front scenes and of the men who are directing the movements of the titanic struggle. There are heart-touching presentations of the destitution and misery that is attending the war, strikingly contrasted with the women and children—the non-combatants—who not only see their prodigal and protectors perishing but all they have swallowed up in the greedy maws of the war monster.

Double-Page Feature.

The double-page feature is a spirited action picture of a cavalry charge against the Germans. The color-bearing falls back wounded, but a comrade grasps the tri-colored from his limp hands and keeps it at the head of the advancing troop. Men fall by the wayside, but the spirit of the nation remains undaunted.

These are but a suggestion of many other fine war pictures. The war extra is on sale by all newsboys and at all the newsstands.

Mrs. Winifred McKewen, seventy-five years old, was found dead in bed by her son, John M. McKewen, at Baltimore.
